

Coffee House Entertainment presents Shannon Curtis

"...love child of Fiona Apple and Norah Jones..." - LA Times

What happens when a girl who grew up singing Amy Grant songs into her hairbrush teams up with a guy who raised himself on New Order and wore only black for ten years? They make the dreamy, penetrating songs that have emerged for the upcoming album by LA-based singer/songwriter Shannon Curtis, as helmed by her producer/mixer husband Jamie Hill (Matt Nathanson, Jens Lekman, Nada Surf).

Shannon says: "Our aim is to conjure the sound of the movies that play in your head, the words you wish you'd said in the moment, the feelings you just haven't been able to shake."

The Los Angeles Times has described Shannon as "... a beautiful piano player who sounds like the love child of Fiona Apple and Norah Jones."
